Farm Sold in Lincoln.

Mr. Jas H. Baughman, of Stanford, on last Tuesday sold his farm of 250 acres and his handsome residence to Mr. H. C. Baughman. The price was not made public. Mr. Baughman will sell all his fine show mules at his sale at the farm on Sept. 6.

Meeting at Antioch.

Rev. C. C. Brown is conducting a protracted meeting in the open air at Antioch and large crowds are present each night to hear this good christian man and forcible speaker preach. The meeting will continue thro this week and perhaps longer.

Stanford Court.

A small crowd was in Stanford County Court day however business seemed to be fair. There were 400 cattle at the stock pens and they sold at from three to five cents per pound also five or six sows and pigs which sold at from $15. to $35. Nunnally's stock pens seemed to have all the crowd.

County Must Foot the Bill

If the proposed school of instruction for live stock inspectors are held, the counties must foot the bills, as there is no state money available for the purpose. The Commissioner of Agriculture is sending out letters to the Fiscal Courts asking if they will pay expense of their inspector to attend one of these schools.

For Misplaced Comma.

A Kansas editor who paid little attention to punctuation is now defendant in a libel suit because he published an item as follows:

"Two young men took their girls to attend teachers' meeting and after they left, the girls got drunk." The comma should have gone after "the girls," but, as it is, the girls have gone after the editor.

Candidate in Tenth.

Hon. A. Floyd Byrd was nominated for Congressman in the tenth district, subject to the action of the Democratic party. In a convention held Tuesday in Mt. Sterling, to oppose Hon. Jno. W. Langley, the Republican nominee.

Mr. Byrd is a very smart man and will be hard to beat. He will be remembered as one of the leading attorneys in the Hargess cases.

Making Good in West.

Hon. Robt L. Davidson, who is now practicing law in Tulsa, Okla., is at home on a vacation. Until a few years ago he practised law here and while he had success in the profession at this place, he has had far greater success in Oklahoma and is ranked as one of the leading lawyers of the State. We congratulate him and wish that he may continue to rise in that noble profession, and help make Oklahoma one of the leading States of the Union.

Huslers.

The Bowman Realty Co., of Huntington, W. Va., have opened up the new addition known as Haselden Heights and a beautiful place it is. Mr. F. H. Medley has had charge of the work assisted by Mr. O. L. Blanchard. Both gentlemen are huslers and have made many friends while here. Several of the lots have been sold privately and houses will soon be erected. As we go to press the big auction sale is going on and a large crowd is on the grounds, to bid on the lots, and to partake of the hospitality of these gentlemen who will serve dinner on the ground while a brass band furnishes music. They are also giving away $200. worth of presents and each and every person on the grounds stands a chance to win a prize.

The Editor.

The fearless editor may offend and lose a subscriber, but if he is right in the end he will gain five. He may lose an advertiser, but if he is right he will gain two thereby. If he labors not to displease anyone he will please no one. If he tries to ride all the horses in the field he will be unhorsed by each of them. The editor should follow his honest, well considered convictions, and the man he should labor to please is himself. If he does this with ability and without fear or favor he will have a great following and better support, though he be wrong half the time, than he who trims his sail to every change of the breeze, and with out chart or compass, principles or purpose, drifts aimlessly with every shifting tide.—Ex.

TOBACCO SALE.

The Burley Tobacco Society will offer for sale on Tuesday August 16th, the tobacco making up the 1909 pool, which consist of about one hundred and twenty million pounds. This conveys to the tobacco growers and to the leaf manufacturers the most important news since the sale of the crops in former pools of the society. The tobacco will be sold by samples and each sample will bear a tag, showing the price, and will not be sold except at the price asked. The auction feature will be eliminated and unless the price is paid the society will keep the tobacco. The samples will be shown at the Central Tobacco Warehouse in Lexington and it is thought that nearly every tobacco manufacturer using white burley will be on hand.

Up to Date Homes.

Let me draw your plans for a modern and up-to-date home, giving price and specification for building same. Miss Bettie Anderson.

Prospective Candidate

Col. Robt. G. Evans of Danville is a hot tip for Lieutenant-Governor. His friends are anxious for him to allow his name to be used as a candidate for the nomination. Col. Evans is a smart man and a good democrat and would make a good Lieutenant-Governor. If he runs with McCreary, he will be the candidate.

Money Needed.

We ask our subscribers to glance at the label on their Central Record and notice whether or not they are in arrears and if you find that you are, kindly see that we are paid in the next two weeks. We are in need of money and desire you to pay up and not make it necessary for us to send you a statement or to send a collector around.

Hay Ride.

Misses Edna and Martha Kavanaugh gave a hay ride on Tuesday evening in honor of their attractive guests Misses Berta Jean Penny, of Stanford, and Elizabeth McDermot, of St. Louis. Quite a number, chaperoned by Mrs. Banks Hudson, responded to Misses Kavanaugh's invitation on this occasion, and after a delightful ride of several miles the crowd was served with frappe by Miss Nancy Walker. All felt indebted to Misses Kavanaugh's as they said good night for the jolly jolt behind the four in hand.

Ewell Nominated.

Col. R. L. Ewell, of Jessamine County, was nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket at the eighth district convention held in Danville on Tuesday Aug 9th. The name of W. B. Buford was withdrawn during the roll call and Col. Ewell's nomination made unanimous. The meeting was called to order by Judge L. V. Bethurum, of Mt. Vernon. L. V. Dood, of Madison County, was elected temporary chairman and Mr. Orr, of Mercer County, temporary secretary.

Can't Recover.

Latest reports from the bedside of Mrs. Con Bell, in Seattle, Washington, are to the effect that she cannot recover. She underwent another operation last week and is not rallying from the effects of the ordeal. This made the seventh operation she has undergone since the street car accident occurred in which her husband, Judge W. Con Bell, and Miss Julia Rochester were instantly killed. For some time it was thought that Mrs. Bell would recover, but on the other hand her condition has continued to grow worse.

Duty-Bogard.

On last Saturday morning at eleven o'clock Miss Jessie Doty and Mr. G. T. Bogard were quietly married in Covington, Ky.

The bride is a very beautiful young lady and has many friends here at her old home. She is a daughter of Mr. Jesse Doty and until a few years ago, made her home here, when she removed to Richmond to be with her sister.

The groom is a very popular young business man of Richmond, where he has resided since he graduated at State University two years ago. He is Manager of the Richmond Electric Light Co. and is a fine electrician. The many friends of the bride at this place congratulate him on his good fortune in winning the heart and hand of such a helpmate, and wish them joy and happiness through this life.

Protracted Meeting at Christian Church.

A series of meetings began at the Christian church last Sunday which are largely attended and great interest is being manifested by both, people of the church and community.

Preparation had been made, so there need be no delay in the power and influence of a great revival from the beginning.

J. J. Spencer of Lexington, is the Evangelist. He is a man of ripe scholarship and broad experience recently having conducted a great meeting at University Place church, Des Moines, Iowa. His services are in constant demand for meetings, lectures and special addresses. Besides, he is a man of great earnestness and gentleness, seeking to impress the truth upon others by his own joy in it. His work in Ohio, Virginia, Maryland and Kentucky testify to his power among men. He is preaching some truly great sermons and is calculated to do our community great good. The people ought to hear him while the opportunity is open to them. Miss Mabel Meyers, of Louisville, is leading the music and delighting the people with her sweet solo's. She is not only singing to the profit of the people but is winning hearts to the Lord's service by her consecrated christian character. The services will continue throughout next week, each night and afternoon except Monday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The people of every church and no church are most cordially invited to attend these meetings.

FOR INSTANCE.

From the Major's Scrap Pile.

Many a philosopher who thought he had an exact knowledge of the whole human race, has been miserably humbugged in his choice of a wife.

Let not the stream of your life be a murmuring stream.

A rich widow, whose lands supply grass for a thousand cattle, is a very attractive grass widow.

The man who sets no value upon his life, probably estimates it correctly.

It is only in the world of dreams that we have the rainbow without the storm.

In solitude a moody man is a burden to himself; in society to himself and others.

There is less noise and tumult in a thunder storm than in a barrel of whisky.

Ladies, if necessary, let your hair be false; let your teeth be false, and let your color be false; but let not your hoods be false; falsehoods are inexcusable.

The way some people go into piety is a sin.

"Say Captain, have you ever doubled the horn?" "Oh yes I quadruple a horn every day between meals."

A practical joker never keeps friends—on no he sells 'em.

Self-love consists in thinking most highly of the particular individual least deserving of our regard.

Live News From Estill.

SPECIAL TO THE RECORD.

Do you sleep under blankets and quilts, who are staying at home? Do you fear to drink any kind of water for fear of contagious fevers. Then close your roll-top desk and give your wife and children a chance to recuperate from the effects of the torrid weather of the past few weeks.

Even cloudy days at Estill Springs have a charm all their own. The whole bunch turned out Friday and Saturday to watch a match croquet game—which the cloudy weather and the plentiful shade allowed to go on uninterrupted all day long.

The champion players in this newly revived old game are: Mr. D. T. Chenault, of Richmond, Mrs. E. C. Gaines, of Lancaster, Mrs. Swain of Louisville Prof. Poynter, of Perryville, and Mr. C. E. Ellwanger, of Louisville.

During the coming week the Croquet Tournament will be pulled off and the championship decided. This was to have been decided during the Tennis Tournament, but the interest in the latter game was too great to be divided.

There are several charming additions to the society at the Springs this week. Mrs. Beilstein, of Louisville, formerly, Miss Elsie Duncan, and her two very attractive young daughters, Misses Laura and Dorothy Beilstein. Both these young women were favored by "what ever gods there be" with their mother's gift of song.

Miss Myrtle Swain, the "first violinist" in the Orchestra is another favored young person with a multiplicity of musical gifts. Miss Antoinette Bell, of Louisville, and Miss Stephany, of Louisville, are musicians of recognized ability and are helping make the band a feature of the Springs entertainment.

But not all the talent belong to the "Female Orchestra." There are a many guests who volunteer to take the first or second violin or even the drum and allow the orchestra to dance. One delightful young woman who changes her name from Miss Annette Jones, of Lexington, Ky., to Mrs. Robert Totten, of Birmingham, Ala., next October, is a regular Pooh Bah in the musical world. She takes either first or second violin and then the piano. We are not giving away State secrets—as the Lexington papers have already announced Miss Jones' engagement. Miss Jones is here with her mother and younger sister, Miss Helen Jones.

Last Thursday the Louisville crowd was agreeably added to by a party from Louisville composed of the Misses Schuman, Miss Sauter and Miss Laflin. These young ladies have added much to the happiness of the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Chenault, of Richmond, came Friday and will remain two weeks. Mr. Chenault has won for himself the laudable ambition of every woman in the hotel to defeat him at croquet.

Miss Annie Royston, of Lancaster, is the popular "palmist" here.

There are several fortune tellers who "run the cards" but all the men prefer the palm reading—Grape Nuts.

Mrs. John Rodman entertained with a Bridge party for Mrs. Kate Kale Cox and Mrs. J. W. Beilstein last Saturday evening. Miss Laura Beilstein and Mrs. Harvey Riddle, of Denver, won the prizes. A Dutch lunch was served after the game at the cottage.

The crowds that have been here all summer have settled down and knitted bed-spreads, embroidered waist and "talking" grows apace.

We could tell a tale of "rolling parties" but as there are only about 4 in the party who roll to reduce their "em bon" we fear for our safety and 11 of Pack's advice to those about so many and "don't."

Don't.

Don't ask the editor to publish a list of wedding gifts.

Don't lug old clippings into a newspaper office and tell the editor that you have brought him "something to fill up with." Take him a head of cabbage; he can fill up with that.

Sitting in the end of a church pew, don't get up to admit others. Move along.

Don't kick a man when he is down unless you are sure that he will never get up again.

Don't put lard on a man's shoes when you see a man "going down hill."

They are already greased for the occasion.

Man of Seventy Six Years Weds Lady Only Twenty Eight.

On Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock Mr. James Littrell seventy six years of age was married to Mrs. Nannie Simpson Whittier, age twenty eight. Both parties reside near Stone Ky., in this County. Mr. Littrell is a well to do farmer and has many friends in the county. The couple were married in a buggy on the public square by Dr. E. H. Pierce pastor of the Methodist church.

Mayor Gaynor Shot.

William J. Gaynor Mayor of New York City, starting for Europe on the first vacation since he assumed office was shot in the head, on Tuesday morning, shortly before ten o'clock, by James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employee. Mayor Gaynor was on board the ship, with a large crowd of friends who were talking to him before the ship pulled out. Gallagher came on board and walked within two feet of the Mayor and fired a 38 revolver at him, at the same time shouting dramatically: "You have robbed me of my bread and butter." Almost instantly the assailant was thrown to the ground by William H. Edwards, an Ex Princeton foot ball player, who held him until he could be handcuffed. Edwards arm was injured by another shot from the pistol. Mayor Gaynor, it is thought, will recover. He was removed to a hospital in Hoboken, N. J., and from last reports is resting easy.

Stock to be Sold.

John W. Hughes & Co., have secured a contract of purchase of the Crab Orchard Springs property in Lincoln county and will begin this week to solicit subscription to the capital stock of $100,000, this amount to be used in the purchase and improvement of the property. The spring consists of about 50 acres of land with a four-story brick hotel building erected in 1876 and a cost of more than $100,000. In front of the main building is a court containing about an acre of ground and covered with magnificent forest trees. On the grounds are the famous Crab Orchard, or Epsom waters, two or three chalybeate waters, magnesia water and a fine sulphur water, the analysis of which shows it is especially beneficial in the treatment of rheumatism.

An effort will be made to enlist the aid of the most prominent physicians of the State and to a sanitarium equal to the noted Hot springs in Arkansas. About 4,000 shares of stock will be offered for sale at $25.—Harrodsburg Republican.

The Cow.

The dairy cow, if able to express herself in a way which the human family would comprehend, might well lay claim to being man's best friend. She might establish such a claim by calling attention to the fact that from her product and from her carcass man manufactures more of the necessities of life than from any other similar source. She furnishes these necessities to him from infancy until such a time as temporal things are no longer associated with his existence, and she does it ungrudgingly and constantly.

In addition to contributing to man's necessity and his pleasure, the prosperity of an agricultural community is more closely identified with her than with any other of the domestic animals. The horse is quite essential in tilling the soil, but where necessity requires it the sturdy son of the cow can take his place, as he has done in every agricultural section on earth. The horse can only furnish labor and can only return a profit to his owner when conditions are right for returning satisfactory grain crops. It is a well known fact that the dairy cow is the salvation of the farmer in times of poor crops as she is able to convert the rough crops which are never a total failure, into dairy products which always have a cash value.

In addition to this she furnishes skim milk and butter milk for the calves, pigs and poultry and fertility for the soil, without which a farm becomes less valuable each year and the whole country less prosperous.

The elimination of the dairy cow would necessitate an almost revolutionary re-adjustment of man's tastes and requirements. It would mean untold suffering and hardship. Of course she will not be dispensed with but her value can perhaps best be appreciated by contemplating such a loss.

She will continue to be man's best friend as long as the human family exists and will keep on supplying him with his greatest needs just as she has done through all the ages.

Louisville Doctor Wins Former Garrard County Girl.

On Wednesday, August 3rd, at 8 p m at the apartments of her sister, Miss Katherine Arnold, in Louisville, Ky. Miss Halline Arnold and Dr. H. C. Tyler Richmond were quietly married.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Arnold, of our County, and is a very attractive young lady and has many friends and admirers here. She has lived in this County until a few years ago when she made Louisville her home. The groom is one of the most promising and popular young Doctors in Louisville and is enjoying a good practice in that City. We extend congratulations and best wishes and hope that the happy young couple will soon be in Lancaster so that their friends may see them and offer congratulations in person.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS.

Harver Helm, of Lincoln County.

Betrayed the Trust.

It will be recalled that after a long deadlock in the Illinois Legislature, some months ago, Mr. Lorimer, a regular republican, a ward politician, without recognized qualifications was elected United States Senator by the aid of Democratic votes. The eyes of the nation have been upon the demerits of that body, to if possible ascertain the motive that caused the strange action of these representatives of their party. An indictment for bribery against several of the Democratic members of the Legislature in connection with Lorimer's election has partly cleared away the mystery. These traitors were bitterly denounced at a recent meeting of democrats at Lincoln, Neb., who demanded the retirement from politics of every one who betrayed the party in that contest. This public rebuke brought a protest from one of the traitors who had not been indicted who explained his vote for a republican after being elected as a democrat upon the ground of patriotism. An exchange made this timely comment upon his attempt to justify himself:

"Any democrat who voted for Lorimer for 'patriotic' reasons ought to be retired to private life and kept there long enough to learn what patriotism means. The democrats who assembled at Lincoln were right in refusing to draw a line between those who voted for Lorimer for pay and those who voted for him because they lacked sense. It is almost as dangerous to have a fool in the legislature as a knave. A democratic legislature who could be convinced that he was performing a patriotic duty in voting for Lorimer could be persuaded to do any thing desired by the lobby, provided the same patriotic arguments were used. He is not fit for any representative position—it is hardly safe to allow him to run at large.

The Lorimer senatorial election seems, from developments, to have been the most corrupt in the history of the nation; that a majority of the democrats should have voted for such a man, under such circumstances, is in itself conclusive proof of widespread corruption. If there were democrats who did not actually receive money they could not have been ignorant of the means being employed.

Turn them out! The party can not pause to defend those who are guilty or who, if innocent, have aroused a suspicion which can never be removed."

Bad Conversation.

Fourteen governments are to be asked to take up the work of preserving from destruction those birds that are most needed by agriculture. Laws are desired to prevent the sale and use of bird plumage in connection with military. Appeals to the humanity of dealers and wearers has heretofore totally failed. It was agreed at the Ornithological Congress, recently held in Berlin, to make the movement international. William Dutcher, president of the Audubon Society, and one of the delegates from this country, reports that there are six recommendations which he proposes to lay before the American Congress. The two most important are legislation against the use of plumage for military decoration, and a law to prevent export and import of bird plumage. It was the sense of the congress that governments should unite in this important effort of bird protection, and make the punishment severe for the destruction of the farmers' friends. In another paper Mr. Dutcher urges the teaching of ornithology in the regular school courses of our country. He would have each school organize a bird club the objects of which shall be to study the life history of birds and to protect them from harm. He thinks that one hour each week would be ample time to devote to the indoor study, but that out of the school the members of the club should observe birds in their homes, and take notes to be presented at the club meeting. Boys and girls brought up after this fashion, with intimate association with the singers and workers will soon grow into such a sympathy with birds that they will love to protect them, and in this way the young people, all over the land, will become a self-appointed body of bird protectors. Both these recommendations, of the congress and Mr. Dutcher, seem to us very rational and practical. We must teach the value of our feathered allies, before we can secure, to a certainty, their protection in our fields and woods.—Independent.

Nuisance.

The following editorial from the Cincinnati Enquirer is respectfully commended to those who have been asking that the streets of Lancaster be cleaned: "When the people of a street petition to the service department of the city for the oiling of it, and assess their property for payment, the order goes out to the contractor and presently he appears with his 'sprinkling' wagon and proceeds with the work. Then it happens there is trouble in many otherwise cleanly households and damage to the garments of men and women. For this oiling is not a delicate spraying of this oil but a spreading of thick, stringy, black stuff that forms puddles, of nastiness here and there to the annoyance of man and beast and to the damage of tires of automobiles and velvet hats. During many days following this oiling process, before the stuff becomes settled and amalgamated with the surface of the street, men, women, and children, dogs and cats track it into houses and flats, to the despair of those who have any inclination toward decency in the home. But even worse than that is the destruction of clothing of those who happen to brush against tires of carriages, buggies or automobiles and acquire black spots that literally 'will not out.' Already in this city thousands of dollars worth of clothing has been ruined by contact with this covered with this filth. Some very expensive costumes have thus been spoiled. The annoyance and loss are greater to women than to men, for the former will at times unwittingly drag the skirt along the surface of such crossings."

Election in Tennessee.

The overwhelming defeat on August 4th of the regular Democratic judicial ticket in Tennessee, which was nominated and vigorously supported by Governor Patterson and his organization was no surprise to those who have been keeping in touch with the conditions in that state. The majority of the independent judicial ticket over the regular Democratic ticket will probably be fifty thousand. Although Governor Patterson has been renominated by the Democratic party for governor, his official and political acts were assailed and denounced by many prominent democrats upon the stump, who were supporting the independent ticket. The election of the Independent ticket is a rebuke to Governor Patterson for the pardoning of Duncan B. Cooper, who was convicted of the murder of the late Senator E. W. Carmack. It is alleged that the unlawful and corrupt attempt through his political representatives to influence or coerce the judges of the supreme court of Tennessee to reverse the Cooper cases was the cause of the Independent judicial ticket. It is now freely predicted that Governor Patterson will be defeated at the November election. The breach in the party in Tennessee seems to be growing wider and is attributed to the unwise leadership and unpopular official conduct of Governor Patterson.

A Likeness.

None but the initiated know the accuracy required in a painting of the face. The average reader who detects a mispelled word or letter upside down feels that his mission on earth is not accomplished until he has called the attention of the overworked editor to the glaring defect. He does not notice the thousands and tens of thousands of letters that are in place or the multitude of words correctly spelled, but his eagle eye is glued on the one that is out of place. So it is with our deeds. Man does a thousand good deeds and no attention is paid to them, but if he makes one mistake it is flashed all over the world. A life time may be spent in building up a reputation that may be wrecked in a moment. The world is a harsh critic, exacting to a fault.—Exchange.

What's The Whole.

Hon. Richard Ewell, of Jessamine County, is the Republican candidate for Congress in the eighth District. But what's the whole? The Hon. Harvey Helm will beat him so far that he can hardly be classed as an "also ran," and election day will find Mr. Helm with the same broad smile preparing for the job of national law making. Mr. Ewell is a bright man but he cannot expect to win in this district, when so good a man as Judge Bethurum was turned down by several thousands.

An Important Case

By BELLE MANIATES

"I know that you have scarcely rested since your last case, Miss Thorne," said the doctor, looking down into the young face saddened and sweetened by experience, "but I can only save the lad with your help. I told his brother there was a glimmer of hope if I could secure the nurse I had in mind, and he said to offer you any inducement."

"I will take the case," she replied. "I can go at once."

In a few minutes she was seated beside Dr. Vail, and as they rose he told her the details of the case.

"Brain fever, and the boy is one of those high-strung, nervous types. It will be a fight, but you seem to understand and soothe nervous children so well."

"Perhaps," she said, musingly, "it's because I once had the care of a child like that one who was very dear to me."

"He calls constantly for his sister; yet he never had one."

The automobile drew up before a large stone house. A maid opened the door and took the bag from the nurse.

"Wait here," directed the doctor, going upstairs, "until I come back."

When he returned the nurse was gazing at some photographs on the mantel, her face very white.

"What is the boy's name?" she asked, abruptly.

"Paul Whitridge."

"I thought so. I can't take this case. I can't stay here, not even to save the child's life."

"See here," said the doctor, roughly, "haven't you learned that doctors and nurses can't indulge in personal feelings? We must work for the and friend alike. The boy is much worse; raving."

"I think I can quiet him. I will go up and see him, and then," she added, firmly, "I must leave." When she came out the doctor led her into a room which he used as a consulting room.

"You promised the boy," he reminded, anxiously.

"I couldn't refuse; but I stay only on certain conditions."

"You may make any you choose."

"You know something of my history. That I lived in the west, that I separated from my husband, took another name and came here to be a nurse. This child, Paul, is my husband's young brother. They have evidently moved to this city."

"Good Lord!" ejaculated the doctor. "Mr. Whitridge is a bad, cruel man, and I came to loathe and despise him. I only stayed with him as long as I did because I was attached to the child, to whom his brother was utterly indifferent. I cannot understand his motive in professing anxiety. I don't want to see him. I won't see him! I thought it out while I was sitting by Paul—how to manage it. You can tell him I am eccentric and a man-hater, that I never go in a house where there is a man, and that I will stay and nurse the boy only on condition that he doesn't come into the sickroom when I am there."

"He will consent to any arrangement when he learns Paul has become quiet under your influence. He is devoted to the child."

"Men of his type," she replied, scornfully, "never change. But please go and make the arrangements with him."

The doctor sought the master of the house, and soon returned.

"He will willingly give his word of honor."

She made a contemptuous gesture.

One evening when the lad was asleep she went down on the beach to watch the breakers. In a long stretch of shimmering moonlight she saw a man approaching. He was tall and slim and straight as a fir tree. He paused before her.

"Helene," he said, "may I not thank you for saving the life of little Paul?" She looked at him astounded. Then a comprehending light came into her eyes.

"You are Francis Whitridge, Walter's brother?" she asked.

"Yes; and I have always regretted that I was abroad at the time of your marriage, and afterwards. I know what your life with Walter must have been, but we must not speak ill of him now that he is gone."

"Gone?" she echoed, wonderingly.

"He died six months ago."

"Oh!" she cried, in an awed tone of relief.

"We have looked everywhere for you—little Paul and I."

"Then it was you who were in the house during Paul's illness?"

"Yes; when the doctor told his story of the 'eccentric' nurse I believed him. But in my anxiety for the boy and for his care, I used to violate the contract, in part. I often lingered near the sickroom. I heard you call him 'little brother,' and I knew who you must be. I didn't dare reveal my identity, lest your antipathy to Walter extend to his relatives. Yesterday a reference to my brother's death before Dr. Thorne led him to suspect the state of affairs, and he told me you did not know of Walter's death. So I came to tell you, and Helene, for Paul's sake, can't we be friends?"

She looked at him earnestly. There was no look of Walter in his lineaments. But an odd resemblance of Paul attracted her. She trusted him instantly.

"Yes," she replied, softly; "we will be friends."

If the busy woman on the farm finds it takes too much time to make her butter into pound prints, which are some trouble to make and still more difficult to keep without ice, she can purchase small jars of crocks which hold a pound each, and which cost but a few cents, the customers to return them when the butter is used.

Don't wait until the clover heads have all turned brown before you begin to cut it for hay. If you do you will lose just about one-half of the feeding value of the crop. Cut red clover as nearly in full bloom as possible. Start the mow when the field looks red, when about two-thirds of the clover is in full bloom. Before you get the crop secured it will be pretty ripe for good hay.

An English Housewife's Comments on American Cookery.

One thing I notice as very strange, in your country, and that is that you do not know how to cut bread. I wonder if it is the fault of the knives? The bread is too thick or too thin, and the edges are jagged, and the crust broken.

The English table is so limited compared with yours. Why, do you realize how the English housekeeper must devise ways and means to make the same fruits and vegetables do service the year round? Oranges, bananas and "pines," and then bananas, pines and oranges—furnish the only fruit. No watermelons, few peaches, and those at sixpence apiece, nothing to break the monotony. Thus it is that the English menus read so elaborately; they are obliged to make frequent changes in service, and elaborate sauces and all sorts of fancy dressings and garnishings to vary the monotony. The chef must furnish the variety which is denied by nature to the hampered housewives of the "tight little island."

Closet Jelly.

To one bottle claret, add juice and rind of one lemon, half a cup brandy, three-quarters pound loaf sugar and an ounce and a quarter of leaf gelatin. Boil five minutes, strain well, and when set, serve very cold with whipped cream. Grape juice may be used instead of the claret.

PLANNING THINGS

"Mother," said Lucy, with characteristic impulsiveness, "Jennie Danton is in town for a week or two, and I want her to come out and let us have a good old gossip. I want to ask her before all the other girls learn that she's here, for then she will have so many engagements that it won't be possible to get hold of her. What do you think?"

"Ask her, by all means, dear," answered Lucy's mother. "I always like to see your friends, and I always loved Jennie. Let's have her to Sunday tea."

"That will be lovely, you dear, sweet motherkins!" was Lucy's enthusiastic response. "I'll tell her to come early, so we can have a nice, long talk. You boys," turning to her three brothers, "must make no engagements for next Sunday, unless I tell you Jennie's not coming. And we won't have an elaborate meal, mother. Just tea and thin bread and butter and cookies and little candies—just afternoon tea in the parlor."

"If it's going to be a parlor struggle or a lapfest of any kind just count me out," spoke up Brother Harry, promptly. "None of those shaky things for mine!"

"Me too!" said Ben. "I don't stand for tray-and-tea-fights," explained Jimmie, "because just as soon as I get a cup of tea in one hand and a sandwich in the other I have to sneeze."

Now, it is Lucy's pride that her brothers, contrary to the habits of some brothers, nearly always are present at her functions, big and little. Further, they make themselves beautifully agreeable and add to the glory of the occasion. So, with a sigh, she capitulated and agreed to have the meal properly set on the table. But she still clung to her basic idea of simplicity, following her mother to the kitchen to discuss the question of food unhampered by masculine suggestions.

"We'll just have cold meat, a simple salad and plain ice cream and cake, with hot tea," she decided. And "I'd just as soon stay to help you out, Miss Lucy," spoke up Angie, the nice colored maid who has been in the family so long that she is almost one of it. "I'd a heap rather stay in and fix things nice than have you give a poor spread."

"All right, Angie," answered Lucy, who detected an ill-served meal and fairly loathed waiting on the table. "Then we can have tea and coffee and the salad served as a separate course, but that's all the difference we'll make. I'm determined on a simple meal. If we decide to have more we'll find ourselves asking a lot of people, and I want a nice, long talk with Jennie. Mother, what kind of cold meat would you suggest?"

"You've quite determined on cold meat," asked her mother. "I always think at least one hot dish is nice. Creamed chicken or fried chicken wouldn't be much more trouble than cold meat, if Angie's going to be here to serve it. And—"

"The young gentlemen, they certainly do love fried chicken," said Angie. "And I could make hot biscuits and strawberry shortcake just as easy as preachin'." And hot coffee certainly does go down fine with fried chicken. And asparagus on toast is lovely with new potatoes, creamed."

"There you are, Lucy!" said her mother. "Now, that's what I call a nice, light meal, and not a bit more troublesome than plain cold beef and potato salad. And when it comes to young men like Dell Jones and Ransom Davis and—"

"I hadn't thought of asking them," put in Lucy, a little coldly. "I thought I told you that I just wanted to have a nice, long talk with Jennie."

"Well, I don't know any surer way of getting a nice, long talk with her than by having other people about to talk to the other people. Jennie knows all these boys, and will love to meet them, and you ought to have some more girls, to provide for the extra men and our own boys. And you could think up some funny limericks for the place cards, and—"

"And have a regular formal dinner, with cards and candles and flower petals in the finger bowls, and all sorts of pretty gimcracks," said Lucy, sarcastically.

"Exactly," cried her mother, with growing enthusiasm. "That's the kind of party I really love, daughter; I dislike these little, spinning top teas as much as the boys do. There's nothing like a round table, with shaded lights and flowers and plenty of good food, too, to make things go swimmingly."

"You just invite about twenty young people for a week from Sunday, instead of next Sunday, and leave all the rest to Angie and me—all, that is, but the limericks for the place cards and the ordering of the flowers. White and green and red would be a good color scheme, and, of course, we'll have the salad and the dessert to match, with olives and salted almonds and pretty candies."

"Run away and write the invitations, and then forget all about the party until it's time to dress for it. We've got it all settled, Angie and I. Lucy hesitated helplessly for a moment, as she had done before upon similar occasions. For a moment a little frown disfigured her forehead. Then, when she remembered how popular her dinner parties always had been, and recalled how Ransom Davis, in particular, likes fried chicken and strawberry shortcake, the frown melted into a smile.

CATARRAH GOES

So Does Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Croup and Asthma.

You can easily tell by reading the symptoms below, whether you have catarrh or not:

Offensive breath, frequent sneezing, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose, huskiness of the voice, tickling in throat, droppings in throat, a cough, pain in chest, loss of strength, variable appetite, spasms of coughing, low spirited at times, raising of mucus, difficulty in breathing, a loss of vital force.

R. E. McRoberts has a sensible remedy (money back if it fails) for catarrh, called Hyomel (pronounced High-o-mey) which is a vaporized air, so antiseptic, that when it is breathed over the inflamed and germ-infested membrane, it kills all germ life, gives relief in two minutes, and cures catarrh.

The price, including hard rubber inhaler, is only $1.00. The hard rubber pocket inhaler will last a lifetime, so that you should need a second bottle of Hyomel, you can get it for 50 cents.

There is money in bees.

Start an asparagus bed. It thrives on a sandy soil.

Sell off all the roosters except the prime ones for breeding.

The breed of white hogs is rapidly disappearing from this country.

The good roads movement increases the pleasure of moving over the roads.

Some men never discover where a fence is weak until they attempt to climb over it.

Even a city man can come to the front with a small flock of poultry in his back yard.

No cow which averages less than one and one-half gallons of milk per day can be kept at a profit.

Take the chill off the water for the mare, and feed her carefully and keep her quiet for a number of days.

The man who said "that the best poultrymen on most farms are the women," knew what he was talking about.

It is more difficult to secure the seeds of forest trees than any other kinds of seeds, since there is so little market for them.

Beets may be canned or pickled and saved for winter use. When vegetables are scarce they will be greatly enjoyed if saved in this way.

In Japan there are 192 people for every 40 acres of land and 256 cows, 256 donkeys, and 512 swine for every square mile of land in the kingdom.

It is not fair calculation to take the average of the herd as the basis of computing annual profit from the dairy. Let each individual stand on her merits.

The sitting hen should be given a new clean box for a nest, filled with the cleanest of material. Place her on the new nest and give her the eggs in the evening.

No animals are bred that are capable of supplying the largest amount of rich milk and storing away the largest amount of flesh and fatness in their bodies at one and the same time.

Most people find that the yearling hens lay more eggs than the older hens, but some chicken raisers claim that the old hens eggs are better for hatching, because they are more strongly fertilized.

Good food never creates the character nor temperament of a cow, nor makes of her a good dairy animal, any more than it never makes a good cow out of a small milker; it is useless to make the effort.

Water or moisture is always on the move. When it rains it soaks the ground, and as soon as it stops raining it starts its upward movement by capillary attraction. It travels from one soil particle to the next and so on until the soil becomes what we call dry.

It must be apparent to every unprejudiced thinking man that if the dairy farmer wishes to obtain the greatest profit in his dairy he must grade up his herd by one of the pure-bred bulls of one of the four great dairy breeds, Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein or Jersey.

All stock will be healthier and will thrive better if salt is kept where they can help themselves daily rather than at intervals. Medicated salts are now put up and sold that are better in every way for the stock than the common salt usually used besides being a better conditioner.

The soil has wonderful absorptive power to hold on to its moisture, for if we place some soil in the oven and drive off the moisture by heat and then examine these soil particles under a powerful microscope we will find each soil particle coated with a thin film of what is termed hygroscopic water.

Shade and water are important matters in connection with grazing cattle, and the more nearly natural the conditions can be made, the better. In a pasture which contains no trees, it sometimes pays to put up a board roof to protect cattle from the hot sun in July and August, but summer feeding on a large scale is not generally advisable at all where there is no natural shade in the field.

Unless the cockerels are to be retained for breeding purposes, it is advisable to kill them off as soon as they are sufficiently large, thus clearing the ground and giving more space to the pullets to grow. When cockerels are allowed to run together, growth is considerably retarded, besides which the flesh loses a good deal of its excellence, both in flavor and fineness.

Professor Washburn of the Minnesota division of Entomology at University Farm finds today to be friends of the farmer. They feed entirely upon an incredible number of insects. The federal department of agriculture, investigating the toad, discovers the startling fact that in 24 hours the insect food consumed by one toad equals in quantity four times the capacity of its stomach, which is practically filled and emptied four times every 24 hours.

Loisure Essential.
Trees, fields, sunsets, rivers, breezes and the like, must all be enjoyed at leisure, if at all. There is not the slightest use in a man's paying a hurried visit to the country. He may as well go there blindfolded as go in a hurry. He will never see the country. He will have a perception, no doubt, of hedgerows and grass, of green lanes and silent cottages, perhaps of great hills and rocks, of various items which go toward making the country; but the country itself he will never see.—Country Parson.

PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT
ARRANGED FOR KENTUCKY
STATE FAIR VISITORS.

ENGAGE BEST FREE ATTRACTIONS

"Pioneer Days in Kentucky" Will Be Crowning Feature of the Pyrotech-nic Display Each Night.

American people must have amusement and no set of men recognize the fact better than the officers and managers of the Kentucky State Fair. The round of pleasure at the eighth annual state fair, to take place in Louisville, September 12-17, will be as nearly continuous and complete as it is possible to make it.

Secretary J. W. Newman has this season paid particular attention to what may be described as the purely amusement features for the forthcoming state fair. A contract has been closed with United Fairs Booking Co.
to supply "The Pass" with the most novel and up-to-date attractions that could possibly be assembled. The usual precautions have been taken to insure the correct moral tone and cleanliness of the individual shows.
This amusement feature will be on such a large scale this year that it was found necessary to enlarge the area heretofore utilized as "The Pass," and that justly famous avenue of mirth will be arranged in the shape of a monster crescent, with every inch of space along the avenue occupied by some new amusement concession.

The list of "free attractions" is a splendid one. These offerings of the fair management proved so popular last year that care was taken this summer to close contracts with the best offerings of the amusement market had to present. A star feature will be the Wahama Japanese troupe, consisting of a dozen or more tumblers, jugglers from the Land of the Kissing Sun. The "Japs" will compete with Madam Louise's Monkey Show, Pink's Trained Mules, Morris and Morris, Expert Tumblers, and Shackey and Briede, High Wire Artists.

Davenport's Fancy Horses are expected to carry off the highest honors, however, among the free attractions. This entertainment is nothing short of a three-ring circus, which will be presented each afternoon and evening.

The acme of spectacular display will be enjoyed each evening in the fire works exhibition. A contract has been closed with the world-famous Pain, and that noteworthy is now at work on a program especially for the Kentucky State Fair. The feature of the fire works display each night will be an original pyrotechnic production entitled, "Pioneer Days in Kentucky." It is said that the services of over 150 men and women will be required to properly present the spectacle.

In addition to the features already described, there will be the races by day and the horse show in the pavillion by night. Negotiations are also under way with owners of other amusement enterprises, and it is probable that the list of special attractions will be largely increased before the opening of the gates of the 1910 fair.

TOBACCO ON DISPLAY.

Splendid Exhibit Planned as Feature
for Kentucky State Fair.

A tobacco exhibit surpassing anything of the kind ever seen in America is promised for the Kentucky State Fair of 1910, which will be held in Louisville the week of September 12 Wm. Addams, of Cynthiana, will be the member in charge of the exhibit.
Rees, with an associate in E. S.
Rees, of Louisville. The latter has been actively engaged for several weeks in the collection of the exhibit and an especially interesting display is promised from the dark tobacco district. Present indications point to an average Kentucky crop, and advices received from those in charge of the work indicate that the individual samples put on exhibit will be of unusual worth and the volume of exhibits will be the greatest in fair history.

In the Burley types exhibits will be made of the crops of both 1909 and 1910. Red Leaf, Bright Leaf, Cigarette Wrapper and Bright Trash types will be shown in each year's class, with premiums aggregating $55 hung up in each instance. Similar premiums are offered for the dark tobacco exhibits entries being confined to the crop of 1910. The following types are listed for prizes: Austrian Leaf, Black Wrapper, Long or African Leaf,
French Leaf, Italian Leaf, Green River
Leaf, and Stemming Leaf. In addition to the prizes mentioned, valuable sweepstake premiums are offered in all three classes.

The official sanction of Kentucky to the tobacco exhibit is illustrated in the donation of $100 by Commissioner of Agriculture, M. C. Rankin.
This money is distributed through premiums. Every grower is invited to compete for one or more of the premiums and each will be supplied with whatever information is desired upon communication with either the superintendent in charge or the Secretary of the State Fair.

Stagers Skeptics.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, fellows, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.
You can't separate them.
And you can't get rid of the

If the kidneys are well and strong,
the rest of the system is prettily sure to be in vigorous health.

Duan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

George Wright, Stanford St., Lancaster, Ky., says: "I have never known of a better kidney remedy than Duan's Kidney Pills. Last fall my back ached a great deal and my kidneys were badly disordered. The kidney secretions were scanty and painful in passage. I fortunately had Duan's Kidney Pills brought to my attention and getting a box at Frible's Drug Store, I began their use.
They relieved me promptly and in return for the benefit I received, I am willing that my name should be used is to all sufferers from kidney trouble to give Duan's Kidney Pills a trial."

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

There Will Be Trotting, Pacing and Running Races Daily at the Kentucky State Fair.

OUR FAIR.

In addition to the county fair that we can all lay claim to as being a part of our possessions, the Kentucky State Fair at Louisville, September 12-17, belong to us as much as to any people in the state. Every Kentuckian should regard this as in a sense his fair. It represents what is being done all over the state just as the county fair shows what is being done in each county in the way of agriculture, live stock and general advancement, and is a combination of the various county fairs, not only of Kentucky, but a great many states. There are representatives of the live stock, etc., produced in the various states. The various state fairs are growing in magnitude each year, and the attendance is increasing, as every one desires to know what is being done in other parts of the state and country.

The Kentucky State Fair Rivals All Others in the Variety and Class of Horses Exhibited.

DOGS OF HIGH DEGREE.

The exhibit of collie dogs at the Kentucky State Fair, which begins in Louisville on September 12, will be a particularly pleasing one. Already the list of entries is large, and the prizes are the best ever offered. The rules of the American Kennel club will govern the collie dog show, and these rules may be had on application to Secretary J. W. Newman, Louisville, Kentucky.

tucky State Fair.

Tenting on the Lawn.

It is expected that many Kentuckians will take advantage of the opportunity to spend an entire week at the State Fair, which will begin in Louisville on September 12. The beautiful, well-shaded and well-watered fair grounds offer an inviting spot for camping parties, as was evidenced last year. It is reported at the headquarters of the State Fair in Louisville that numerous inquiries have already been received from visitors who plan to camp out on the grounds for all or part of the fair week.

Man's Work and Personality.
A man's work, if it is worth while,
is always larger than he is. The breadth and bigness of it expels the consideration of himself. He can think of nothing but the goal. The Wright brothers became the leading aviators of the world because they worked most of the time, instead of talking about work. They did not scatter their energies in several lines of effort, but they did just one thing, and so they succeeded.

The Fountain That Never Runs Dry.

Time was, and not many summers ago, when the soda-fountain was an insignificant affair. A small upright marble cabinet, which held a few syrops, a metal nozzle at the top that supplied the carbonated water that stirred up the syrops, and an ice-box on the side, composed the fountain.
Strawberry, orange, lemon, chocolate vanilla and a few other flavors comprised the repertoire of beverages dispensed by the proprietor or the boy who swept up the drug-store floor. The mint did not have to work over time to turn out the nickels and dimes that were spent on it.

But to-day the soda-fountain is a work of art in marble and plate-glass.
Some fountains, if taken outside their regular habitat, would adorn our most beautiful parks. Their marble counters cost small fortunes in themselves.
The glass plates that glitter behind them are insured for hundreds of dollars. The bronze and marble statues that crown these master-pieces of a new and rapidly growing business could find a place in some art-gallery.
The making of these sizzling, overflowing temples that quench the thirst of thirty million Americans is done by expert marble cutters and polishers and experts in metal and glass. The preparing of formulas for the beverages taxes the skill of chemists and extract makers.

The soda-fountain has, indeed, become the national thirst-quencher.
From the time when the first robin chirps until the fall of the first flake of snow, the American people throng eagerly around it. If the Mississippi river were to go dry suddenly on the first of May and all the soda-fountains in the United States were turned into it, many boats could still navigate its fruit-flavored waters. Should all the fountains in the land shut down for a single day during a hot spell in June or July, a groan of agony would go up from parched America.

The half-dozen or more flavors that were first known to the druggist's and conductor have been multiplied by a hundred. Every drink that can appease the palate is served with surprising neatness and quickness. The expert soda-dispenser can pass out an "angle wing," "Black Hawk sundae," a "Calcutta lemonade," or a blood orange "frappe" as rapidly as he can a glass of plain soda. To date standard formulas, prepared and approved by the scientific men in the business, number over a thousand. Every fruit grown is used in the manufacture of drinks, "sundae," and other concoctions that bring joy to the thirsty soul.

The literary schedules of the beverages rival the hotel menus. The names of drinks and dishes are printed and stenciled on cards and displayed in tempting array. Some of the larger fountains change their "leaders" every day; and the man who wants something more than plain soda can give a different order every time and then not begin to exhaust the list.

More soda-water itself has been supplanted largely by offerings more substantial. Eggs by thousands are used, and some folks think their drink not complete without the yolk of an egg in it. Ice-cream enough is sold to supply all the restaurants in the United States. Cantaloupes are kept on ice and sliced up and served with cream on them.

With all its exterior beauty and interior sweetness, the soda-fountain has attracted such a patronage that in many places it is forced to remain open all the year. In some of the department stores December is the best month. Intoxicants are never sold at reputable fountains. The "cocktail" sometimes seen on the display cards is altogether different from the cocktail served over the bar, and would be scorned by its harder namesake. The soda-fountain is thus a genuine American institution whose democracy is a thing beautiful to behold.—"Harpers."

Culture.

Some people understand classical music so well that they hardly ever break in and applaud at the wrong time.—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOTICE THE HUBS

On the next STUDEBAKER Wagon you pass on the road

Why aren't they split and cracked like the ordinary wagon?
Because the ordinary wagon hub is made from oak, a wood that splits and cracks very easily, while hubs are made from Eastern Black Birch, a very springy, tough wood, chemically treated, with great weather resisting qualities.

Water birch is used by some manufacturers, but it is even poorer than oak.
It is frail and will not stand the strain.

Studebaker hubs cost more than any other hub on the market, but they are stronger and wear longer.

It is just as easy to speak kindly to a horse as to swear at him.

It's a safe guess that a horse refuses whole corn has something wrong with his teeth.

If the horse must be kept in the barn during hot weather, keep all the doors and windows wide open.

Accumulated refuse in the her-house means diseased hens. Cleanliness in the poultry business is essential.

Well-fed chicks generally stay at home and so don't cause neighborhood quarrels by digging up all the gardens within reach.

The loss of the corn crop of Oklahoma by hot winds is estimated to be about $20,000,000 in value. A serious loss for a young State.

Do not let your Irish potatoes remain in the ground until dry rot fungus gets started on the tubers. Dig and house them for future use.

The place to look for lice on turkeys is on the quills on tops of wings. Salt and grease put on on a sunny day will kill them.

A ten dollar bill often stands in the way of a man's getting a good ram. The right kind of a ram makes one-dollar bills for his owner.

Change the diet occasionally. Cows, as other animals, like a change, and their appetites will be better if given a new meal frequently.

Occasionally, when breaking eggs for home use, clots of blood will be noticed in the eggs. This is caused by internal hemorrhages, which are the result of some inflammation. The trouble can be remedied by feeding plenty of green food and not so much animal food, in order to allay the inflammation.

Young pigs have each his teat at the family feast and he jealously guards it by giving an intruder a sharp, quick blow on the snout. It will be noticed when the mother suckles her pigs they are all present if in health. But if one becomes ill and does not occupy his place the others soon rob him and leave him to starve.

How High Can Corn be Fed?

Since the advance of corn to present high prices there has been widespread discussion as how high a price can be paid for corn to feed for hogs, and still make money on hogs, says the Duroc Bulletin. There are some who claim that when corn reaches 70 cents a bushel no money can be made on hogs fed on corn.

These making this claim probably mean that there is no profit to hogs if fed on 70-cent corn alone, and if that is what they mean they are correct. But the southern farmer does not need to use corn alone, for the south is abundantly blessed with other feeds that can be used in connection with corn at even 70 cents and higher, and with the combination, there is still money in hog raising.

Anyhow it is not best to feed corn alone to hogs, any more than it is to feed a human being on a diet exclusively of corn pone for six months. Man likes a change in diet and so does a hog. The hog in his wild state, free to make his own selection of food, feeds on roots, nuts, grasses and other life-sustaining things nature provides, and if he cannot get as fat as hogs now demanded by the markets, he keeps in good flesh and has the frame and flesh foundation on which to lay fat.

The domestic hog has inherited from his ancestors the tendency to select his own ration from a variety of articles, and when he is enclosed in a pen and confined to one feed he is prevented from attaining the highest possibilities.

The hog needs variety, and if corn feeds reach 70 cents a bushel, if it is combined with other and less expensive foods it can be used in feeding hogs as a finisher and money can be made by the hog raiser.

"He says, 'Goshlow with the butter kids; it's 40 cents a pound,'" replied the youngster.

CHEESE BOX MADE USEFUL

Home-Made Contrivance, Strengthened by Metal Hoop, Proves Very Effective as Press.

I have a very useful device which is made from a cheese box, writes Mrs. H. Bonadon of Nebraska in Farm and Home. I bored a number of small holes in the box, removed both the top and bottom, and strengthened it by putting a metal hoop around it.

I put the cheese inside of this casing and place it on a block that has a groove in it to let the whey run off on one side. On top of the cheese I place a round block of wood, and across this is laid a long board, which is attached to the wall at one end and has a weight on the other. This serves as a cheese press, and proves very effective.

DAIRY NOTES

Clean cows mean clean milk.

Keep the calf pails scrupulously clean.

Cows are gentle unless they are abused.

The successful dairyman must be a successful salesman.

Possibly the high price of butter is making dairy cows higher.

Every ounce of food you put into a cow is turned into something.

You cannot get 11 pounds of material out of ten pounds of food.

Contamination of the milk in the barn may kill somebody's baby in the city.

The cows that drop their calves this month should be well protected from the heat and flies.

The treacherous shadeless pasture is one form of inflicting cruelty to domestic animals.

A domesticated cow is not apt to be vicious unless she has been raised amid vicious surroundings.

Dairying is the salvation of poor soil. But it's better to use it as a preventative than to have to use it as a cure.

Take special pains to keep the vessels clean in which the calves are fed. Hot sun and dirty pails make serious trouble.

Death to babies sometimes lurks in the dirty milk can and death to young calves is often concealed in filthy feeding troughs.

No matter what some folks say, cows need salt. They ought to have at least three or four ounces each per day, but the best plan is to keep it where they can help themselves.

Secondary Dairying.
Secondary dairying is being practiced by too many farmers. When anything had to be neglected it was always the dairy, and for this reason the profits from their dairies have been small. Where milking machines have been introduced they have influenced dairymen to clean up their farms and take more pride in their work. This naturally will result in the production of cleaner milk and in some cases, better prices. Any practical apparatus which has a tendency to improve dairy conditions should be welcomed by the industry.

Milk Prices.
The wholesale price of milk for June has been fixed by the executive committee of the Philadelphia Milk Shippers' union at 34 cents per quart.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

A brood sow must be fed properly.

Kill Canadian thistles and quick grass.

Wheat bran and oats make strong bones in the colt.

The usual time required for churning is about 20 minutes.

Improvements furnish a few comforts and all something to admire.

Rub off the water sprouts between the thumb and finger as soon as they appear.

A lazy man should never breed colts, for he must be alert and on the job if he wishes to succeed.

Man imitates nature. By grafting schemes he improves on nature. After that nature imitates man.

An attendant should be on hand at the time of birth, for a little timely help has saved many a valuable colt.

Clean water, pure air and sunshine are all free; and they are necessary in the production of pure, wholesome milk.

Filth and dampness are great hindrances. The first fosters vermin; the second brings most dangerous ailments to fowls.

Watch for cabbage bugs and cabbage worms. These insects usually cause trouble when the weather gets dry and food is scarce.

All of the corn ground should be manured or otherwise well fertilized for a large yield, and no farmer should be content with a small yield.

Eternal vigilance is the price of having the best; so one must watch for insect pests and be ready with insecticides and fungicides to destroy them.

The cow's appetite is important, but it should not be abused. As much harm comes from allowing her to eat too much as comes from not allowing her to eat enough.

It is a good plan to keep all vegetation down around the hives, so that it will not interfere with the flight of the working bees, their hive and the feeding ground.

The best dairymen now practise intensive methods with their cows, making them yield the greatest amount of milk possible by liberal feeding and the best of shelter and other care.

Geese may be picked every six weeks in warm weather, but they must be well fed. When they are picked often they do not lay, as the growth of new feathers weakens and debilitates them.

Attractive flower beds add much to the charm of the flower garden. Coleus, salvia and phlox are well adapted for bedding purposes. Plants may be bedded now if they are watered occasionally during summer.

Few sheep have as good care as they ought to have. Too many farmers leave them to shift for themselves. They can't do their best that way. Make much of your sheep. They are one of the best kind of property on the farm.

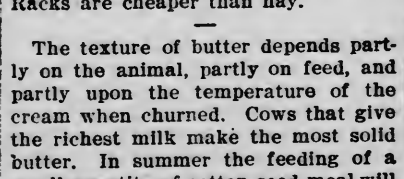

The day of feeding stock of any kind, and especially sheep, on the ground has gone by. It was a most wasteful way. Sheep will drag more hay out on the ground and spoil it for their own eating or that of any other animal than any other farm animal. Racks are cheaper than hay.

The texture of butter depends partly on the animal, partly on feed, and partly upon the temperature of the cream when churned. Cows that give the richest milk make the most solid butter. In summer the feeding of a small quantity of cotton seed meal will help to make the butter firm.

Bisulphide of carbon on a piece of burlap or oakum, thrown quickly down when the soil is moist, Professor Washburn, Minnesota entomologist, says has killed many pocket gophers in his experiment work. He uses half a pint of bisulphide at a burrow.

All soils with a retentive subsoil should be well drained, and work should be most perfectly planned and executed. Should water stand a few hours on the land a season's crop may be lost. Soil that is well drained will allow the heat and air to penetrate to a greater depth and will withstand drought better than one that is not.

Adornment.
To adorn ourselves seems to be a part of our nature, and this desire seems to be everywhere and in everything. I have sometimes thought that the desire for beauty covers the earth with flowers, paints the wings of moths, tints the chamber of the shell and gives the bird its plumage and its song. O, daughters and wives, if you would be adorned, be beautiful—Robert G. Ingersoll.

The utensils are a very important part of the dairyman's equipment. The cans and pails should be well built and made with a view to perfect and easy cleaning.

Profitable Cow.
A Nebraska Jersey cow produced cream during the year ending March 1 that sold for $250. Her feed cost around $100.

His Great Discovery.
Shallow reasoning is not always confined to lower grade scholars. The case of Oxford university that they tell at Oxford university that a student, on being asked if he could mention any instance of special design in nature which has had found of himself, replied, "Yes; the conformation of the nose of the bulldog. Its nose is so retracted that it can hang on to its opponent and yet breathe freely. But for this it would soon have to let go."

The DAIRY

Highly Essential That Cows Be Clean as Dust and Dirt Adhering Contaminate Fluid.

The health of the cows is the first essential in the production of good milk. They should be in good physical condition and free from disease. They should also be tested for tuberculosis by a capable veterinarian at least once a year, and all reacting animals removed. The object of the tuberculosis test is not only to safeguard the milk supply but to protect the herd from the ravages of this disease. The feed of the herd should be wholesome, and the water supply should be protected from contamination.

Dirt and dust adhering to the cows are responsible for most of the contamination of milk. It is therefore essential that the cows be clean—not necessarily washed every day and dried with a sterile towel, but clean in a commonsense meaning—that is, free from accumulation of dirt and manure, and thoroughly brushed. If the hair on the udders, flanks and tails is clipped, this will aid in keeping the animals clean.

The cow stables should be free from contaminating surroundings and well drained. An abundance of light is very important. About 500 cubic feet of air space should be provided for each animal. Proper ventilation will keep the air fresh and pure at all times. A coat of whitewash twice a year will make the stable lighter and the air sweeter and will destroy countless germs.

The milkhouse should be located at a convenient place where there is good drainage. A cement floor is very important and should be extended up on the sides at least six inches, or better still, to the window casings.

An inexpensive and conveniently arranged milkhouse as shown may be built to accommodate 25 to 60 cows. The building is divided into four rooms, arranged to eliminate unnecessary labor and at the same time to provide ample space for the apparatus, its operation and care.

The best location for the milkhouse would be about halfway down the length of the barn and 12 to 15 feet distant from it. A door in the side of the barn at this point, opening from a cross alley, makes it convenient for the milkers and saves unnecessary time and travel.

A driveway should be placed between barn and milkhouse for bringing empty cans, bottles, feed, etc., to the milkhouse, and for loading milk upon the delivery wagon.

In one corner of the building a small weighroom is partitioned off, the floor of which is raised 24 inches above the main floor; this room is entered from the vestibule. The milk is taken from each cow to this room, where it is weighed, recorded on the milk sheet, and emptied through the funnel (A), which is provided with cheesecloth strainers and a hinged cover. The milk passes from the funnel by gravity to a mixing tank and cooler (B), from which it empties into a can which is carried over to the bottle filler (C) for immediate bottling, or into shipping cans which may be placed in the pool built into the bottom of a refrigerator (D). If it is desired to separate the cream, a steam turbine separator would be provided at N, run by steam from the boiler.

The milkroom is so located that it is not necessary to enter it except to care for the milk, thus making it easy to keep clean and cool and free from flies, dust and other contamination.

The utensils are a very important part of the dairyman's equipment. The cans and pails should be well built and made with a view to perfect and easy cleaning.
